Originally aired on October 12, 2020. Law and order is breaking down all around us as mob rule and rioting reigns in our nation's cities and streets. Today we'll look at how Marxist revolutionaries have recently sought to divide the people in Chile. We will hear from Dr. Carlos Casanova, a Venezuelan lawyer and professor in Chile about how communists use the tactic of dividing the people to incite revolution. Leah Southwell, an American citizen and former resident of Santiago, recounts her first-hand encounter with protesters in Chile and how they resemble and relate to the "Black Lives Matter" protests currently engulfing the United States.
